

Abstract

A gas light assembly including a stand member having a recessed portion sized to receive a fuel container. The recessed portion is accessible through an opening of the stand member. A panel member is coupled to the stand member and movable between a 5 closed position covering the recessed portion and an open position wherein the recessed portion is accessible for inserting or removing the fuel container.